

INTRODUCTION:

Written By: Bev Cielnicky

A retired public school teacher
&
President of Crusade for Life

The following are suggestions for a general education on pro-life issues. There are excellent resources listed for students who are doing research articles, term papers, speeches, debates, book reports, drama productions and so on from a pro-life perspective. Many of the groups listed have wonderful brochures for young people. Some have free material. * Recommended.

There are numerous web sites that address the life issues at all levels of maturity. As a teacher, parent or youth leader, please look over the different sites and their material that have been recommended in this unit before giving out the web addresses to your students to make sure you feel it is right for your class or student.

When young people enter into the high school years and then into college, they need to be well grounded in pro-life principles if they are to successfully stand against the pro-abortion worldview that they will encounter. Five essential areas have been addressed in this section which will enable them to not only defend their pro-life worldview but to do it in such a way that others are possibly won over from a pro-abortion worldview to a pro-life worldview.

These areas are:

1. Keeping the young person pure.
2. Helping the youth pastor/leader/teacher and parent prepare pro-life students.
3. Preparing pro-life students to become salt and light in their school – public and private - and community through personal interaction, debates and writing assignments.
4. Getting the young person involved in a pro-life ministry.
5. Help is available for the pregnant young person and for the post-abortive person .